Who we are

With half a century of experience, OTS is an international, nonprofit consortium that brings together more than 50 universities and research institutions from around the world, including the UCR, UNA, UNED, TEC and the National Museum of Costa Rica. We are located at the UCR (Costa Rica) and Duke University (United States).

What we do

Promote research on tropical biodiversity and climate change.

Undergraduate and graduate education, specializations and professional training in tropical biology, environmental sciences, and public health.

We have three biological stations in Costa Rica, dedicated to education and research, and open to tourism.

Short classes for environmental decision-makers.

BioCursos, available to the general public.

Corporate volunteer programs.
